Villa has refused absolutely to ally himself with the federals under Maas in fighting the Americans.

Elwood Hamilton, of Frankfort, is a candidate for railroad commissioner to succeed Wm. Klair.

The South American envoys have dropped the rebels out of their plans and will deal only with Huerta.

The Kitty League opens the season to-morrow. The first games here will be Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with Henderson.

Two more wounded boys at Vera Cruz have died and there are now 19 good reasons why Funston should be allowed to go on to Mexico City.

Train robbers on the Illinois Central killed the Pullman porter before they began operations, thus eliminating competition — Elizabethtown News.

Joseph Caillaux and Ferdinand d'Ailleires, of Paris, fought a bloodless pistol duel Monday. Caillaux should have let his wife do his shooting. She hits.

John R. Silliman, American consul at San Luis Potosi, is held a prisoner and threatened with execution by Gen. Maas, the federal leader who was run out of Vera Cruz.

The mediators have set their first meeting for May 18th, about the time Funston ought to be in Mexico City. Evidently they are making no effort to be im-mediators.

Hiram Duryea, aged 81, a retired millionaire starch manufacturer, was murdered while asleep at his home in the Bayridge section of Brooklyn, by his demented son, Chester Duryea, aged 43.

Richard Olney, of Massachusetts, has declined the $12,000 job tendered him by the President. The other four members of the Reserve board are: Paul M. Warburg, New York; Dr. Adolph Caspar Miller, San Francisco; Harry A. Wheeler, Chicago; W. P. G. Harding, Birmingham, Ala.

The constitutionalists at Tampico have notified Rear Admiral Mayo, commander of the American warships stationed there, that if any of his vessels attempted to enter the Panuco river the oil reserves above the city would be emptied and the oil ignited, which would mean certain destruction to the town.

The three South American envoys who have undertaken by diplomacy to settle Mexico's civil strife, as well as her international difficulties, have announced that the first formal conference with representatives of the "different parties interested in mediation" would be held at Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, May 18.

Gen. Sickles.

Gen. Dan. E. Sickles, who died this week in New York, was a congressman in 1859 and killed Philip Barton Key, U. S. District Attorney, for liberties with his first wife, an Italian woman. She died a few years later. Sickles went into the war and came out a one-legged general, but remained in the regular army until he became Minister to Spain in 1869. At the court of Spain Sickles' vigorous personality made him a dominating figure. At Madrid he contracted his second marriage with the beautiful and distinguished Senorita Creagh. This romance was followed by estrangement which was to last more than a quarter of a century. Returning alone to New York, Gen. Sickles again entered politics. He served as Sheriff of New York, and at sixty-seven he was re-elected to Congress. Gen. Sickles' life drew to a close with frequent romantic situations. He faced bankruptcy proceedings in his last years, though he had early in life received a large share of his father's $3,000,000 estate, but his estranged wife and son came to him on several occasions.

CARRANZA OBSTINATE

Mediation Outlook Grows Less Popular or Hopeful.

TWO MORE SOLDIERS DEAD.

The Wounded Are To Be Brought Back to New York And Boston.

The disposition of Gen. Carranza to eliminate himself from the mediation proceedings, if it should include a discussion of Mexico's internal problems, has not met with the favor of administration officials, but they do not think this decision is final.

It is virtually certain that the withdrawal of American forces from Vera Cruz now will not be ordered until some definite settlement of the whole Mexican problem is in sight.

The death of two of the American wounded at Vera Cruz, bringing the mortality list up to nineteen, the announcement that the President and Secretaries Garrison and Daniels would go to Brooklyn to attend memorial services for the seventeen dead being brought back on the Montana, and the order to the hospital ship Solace to bring its wounded back to New York and Boston so that the sick may be in a cooler climate, were the chief announcements from the navy department yesterday. The war department continued plans for possible emergencies, while the state department was active in caring for refugee Americans who are leaving Mexico by the hundreds.

VETERANS AT JACKSONVILLE

Christian County Delegation for Jacksonville Numbered Nearly One Hundred.

SPECIAL TRAIN CARRIED MANY

Number of Veterans From Here Growing Smaller as Years Go By.

Among those who left here Tuesday morning on the special train over the Louisville and Nashville road for Jacksonville, Fla., to attend the Confederate Veterans reunion were:

John R. Dickerson, J. B. Harned, J. B. Thompson, Frank Monroe, Frank M. Petty, E. W. Coleman, Esq. W. L. Parker, John J. Reed, David Shoulders, John C. Thurmond, Joe F. Turner, J. W. Mitchell, John Crunk, Esq. James Orten, Gus Lacy, J. D. Thompson, W. A. Adcock, Henry Koon, T. O. Turner, Mrs. Lena Cobb, Miss Edna Cobb, Miss Mary Park, J. M. Grace and wife, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Mullins, Mrs. J. B. Harned and daughter, Mrs. E. E. Harned, Mrs. Lee Van Hooser and Mrs. J. C. Koon.

A number left here Sunday and many took their departure for Jacksonville on the various trains Monday, the total from the county being nearly one hundred. This is by far the largest number from this section to attend a similar occasion. The number of veterans, however, was smaller, as their ranks are being gradually thinned out by death as years pass. Many of the visitors to the reunion will take side trips, visiting numerous points of interest over the State of Florida before their return home.

JOHNNY REBS IN REUNION

Confederate Hosts in 24th Annual Love Feast at Jacksonville.

Jacksonville, Fla., May 6.—Survivors who wore the gray in the war between the states have gathered by the thousands in Jacksonville preparatory to the opening of the 24th annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans here today.

Housed in the tents of Camp Kirby-Smith, the veterans told again the stories of Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge, of Gettysburg and the Wilderness and a score of other battlefields of the conflict between the north and the south.

Two allied organizations held meetings last night, the Confederate Southern Memorial association and the Sons of Confederate Veterans. Neither organization transacted business of importance.

Park Trammell, governor of Florida, and Van C. Swearingen, mayor of Jacksonville, formally welcomed the veterans to-day. Sessions of the reunion will continue until Friday, when the meetings of the two allied organizations will end with the veterans parade. Memphis wants the next meeting.

He came to Hopkinsville from Cincinnati in 1864 and became a member of the carriage-making firm of Blumenstiel, McCamy & Bonte. He was a man of kindly impulses, genial in his nature and strong in his friendships. He was a member of the Catholic church and his funeral services were held yesterday morning at the church, by Father J. P. Welsh. DELAY AT HERNDON

Cause of Failure of Mail To Arrive Promptly on Herndon Route 1.

For sometime complaints have been made by patrons on the Herndon Route No. 1 that the Kentuckian was not delivered to them until the day following publication. The postmaster at Herndon was asked to investigate and report where the fault was, as the papers leave this office on time. A report has been made explaining that the mail train does not reach Herndon until 12:32 o'clock and that the carrier waits only long enough to get the letter mail and daily papers, leaving behind all other mail matter until the following day. The matter has been taken up with the department and the service will be improved as soon as it can be brought about. Patrons on this route, or other routes, will confer a favor by reporting any further unsatisfactory delivery of their papers.

ALIENATION SUIT

Clinton Pitzer Wants Damages From His Wife's Parents.

Clinton B. Pitzer has sued Jan. B. Johnson and wife Lou Johnson for $5,000, alleging that they alienated the affections of his wife Callie Johnson Pitzer. The wife was a sixteen-year-old girl when Pitzer married her last September, he says with the consent of her parents, the defendants. She left him October 22, 1913, and has since sued him for divorce. This suit is a sequel to the other. Pitzer says he is still anxious to live with his wife, who is now with her parents.

TO LIFE AND LOVE

Modern Prodigal Turned From Folly to Wisdom Almost at the Last Moment.

By GEORGE GRANTHAM BAIN.

The fiery lights of the little voi-tures twinkled up and down the Champs Elysees. Now and then the chug-chug of an automobile consumed the distance from the Place de la Concorde to the Rond Point in a minute and disappeared as rapidly toward the Place de l'Etoile.

Henderson kicked the gravel impatiently with his heel. His last ten centimes had been spent for the rent of the iron chair on which he sat.
He had been wondering if the ticket of the old woman who rented it to him entitled him to occupy it all night—or if he would be turned out at midnight.

He had just committed the egregious folly of eating an elaborate meal—a very fainty meal, crowned with great, tender, delicious strawberries buried in a silver bowl full of whipped cream, set on a block of crystal clear ice.

He was simply whimsical, and it amused him to have a jest—perhaps a last jest—with fate. So when he had faced that evening the alternative of pawning something from his depleted wardrobe or going without a meal, he had arrayed himself in evening dress and taken his last daylight garment to the Mont de Piete.

On a handsome winter overcoat and a London-made silk-lined suit, scarcely worn, he had raised enough money for his final fling at fortune.
"Nice night, isn't it," said Cazenove as he sat down on the adjoining chair.

"Quite nice," said Henderson with an affectation of interest. "What you doing out here, Cazenove?"
"Taking the air like yourself," said Cazenove, as he tendered his cigar case. "Healthful open-air life, this in Paris. The riot of night life on Broadway isn't much like this busy subdued existence, is it?—I was there last week."

Henderson's heart came up in his throat. This link seemed to bring him closer and closer to the old life
—the life in God's country, as every expatriated American calls it, if only under his breath.

"Didn't know you'd been away," said Henderson, trying to control his voice that threatened to break for a moment.

"Just ran over for three days," said Cazenove. "Had to see my partner. Saw your governor for a minute. He's looking well."

"I guess he's all right," said Henderson. He could not say much more, since he hadn't heard from his father in more than three months.

They sat watching the procession of carriages for several minutes, silently. Then Cazenove said: "I think I'll be going on. Dine with us tomorrow?"

"Thanks," said Henderson. "I mean, thank you, no. I can't. I've an engagement."

"Can't you break it? Is it in town?"

"Yes—that is, Cazenove, old man!"

"Well, Henderson?"

"I think I've come to the jumping-off place, Cazenove."

"So I thought when I saw you sitting here."

Cazenove smiled and sat down again, balancing his cane on one finger to distract his eyes. Henderson gave him a quick look.

"I didn't know I looked so seedy as that," he said.

Ordinarily he would never have thought to seek sympathy from Cazenove. Cazenove was such a confounded cynic in everyday life. But his manner was not unsympathetic—nor was it indifferent.

"I cut myself off from the governor three months ago," said Henderson.
"It wasn't all my fault. He was just as stubborn as I was."

Cazenove smiled a little, but he didn't answer.

"Did he?" Henderson hesitated a moment. "Did he tell you about the girl?"

"No," said Cazenove.

"I suppose the governor was right," Henderson went on lamely, "but I couldn't see it that way, and he was—he was so positive. The fact is, Cazenove, I wanted to marry Josephine Deham—we were engaged—and he said I must put it off for two years and get into some work."

"Yes, I don't think it was fair to Josephine, because I'd told her I'd be married right away, and so—"

"And if you broke with Josephine inc."

"Was I wrong?"

There was an irritating cynicism in Cazenove's expression when he answered, but Henderson didn't see it.
"It's a question," he said, "whether it was more wrong to tell Josephine she must wait two years or that she must wait forever. Now those the second alternative."

"Oh, she doesn't care," said Henderson gloomily. "I've never had a word from her since I left New York."

"You've written regularly, of course," said Cazenove in his even voice.

"I wrote her once," he said, "and told her the governor was going to disinherit me and that we couldn't marry. She didn't reply."

"Well, my boy, what could a self-respecting girl say if a man wrote to her—as perhaps you did—and told her that?"

"Well, go ahead," said Henderson.
"—say, that his disinheri-tance would undoubtedly make it impossible for her to marry him?"

"Did I write that?"

"Didn't you?"

There was another pause.

"I think I did," said Henderson.
"though I don't see how you could know. . . . You don't mean that she thought I accused her of—"

Cazenove waited a few minutes.
Then he said softly, "What else could it mean?"

Henderson stood up and struck the gravel with his cane. An alert cabman drew up at the curb and held up his hand.

"Come up to my house tonight," said Cazenove with his hand on Henderson's arm. "I've a spare bed."

He half pushed him into the seat of the little voiture.

Henderson presently broke the silence that lay between them.

"I've been stubborn—and—and wrong, Cazenove. I knew it down somewhere in my heart when the governor was speaking to me. But I wouldn't acknowledge it even to myself. I'd go to him this minute if I could and tell him so."

The voiture had stopped before a big white building, one floor of which was lighted brilliantly.

"You know I saw your governor when I was in New York," Cazenove said. "Would you like to hear what he said to me? He said, 'Tell Jack if he wants to come home at any time that we all need him badly. Give him all the money he needs. And perhaps I wasn't as considerate as I might have been.'"

Henderson did not answer, but he turned his head away.

"Come along," said Cazenove.
Henderson followed his host up two flights of steps. As they reached the landing Mrs. Cazenove threw open the door.

"I thought you were never coming," she said, "and the chafing dish has been waiting an hour."

She held out a welcoming hand to Henderson. But as he entered the brightly lighted room another figure half in the shadow stood hesitating.

"Josephine," he cried—and held out his arms.

It was fifteen minutes later when Mrs. Cazenove's voice from the other room summoned them with a cheery "Supper's ready."

They came in arm in arm, smiling through half-dried tears. There was something of Cazenove's dry smile on his wife's lips as she said: "Did I forget to tell you that Josephine was one of my chums at college, Mr.
Henderson? Wasn't it stupid of me?"

"I'm afraid I've delayed your supper," said Henderson.

"Not very much," said Mrs. Cazenove quizzically. "Let me see. How many hours ago was it, Henry, when we were driving up the Champs Ely-sees and you saw Mr. Henderson sitting under the trees?"

"Just long enough to make me very hungry," said Cazenove.

"It was two o'clock when Cazenove put out the lights and candle in hand, escorted Henderson to his room. As he put down the gandle, Henderson grasped his hand and pressed it hard.

"I was an ass, Cazenove," he said.
"So I understood," said Cazenove with a smile.—Boston Globe.

"Bert" Wing.

Bert Wing, who has voluntarily returned to the penitentiary, is the youngest son of the late S. M. Wing, of Owensboro. In the early eighties he killed in St. Louis, Joe Glenn, formerly a clerk in the store of the late A. J. Mitchell, of Owensboro, in a drunken row over Miriam Eaves, the beautiful Greenville girl with whom Bert became infatuated when they were both little more than children. For this he was convicted and sentenced to the Missouri penitentiary for ten years. After four or five years he was pardoned and returned immediately to Kentucky, again seeking Miriam Eaves, who had been induced to reform and enter a convent in Michigan.

On a visit to her old home at Greenville, he found her and induced her to marry him one mid-night, and they left for Louisville. They resumed their dissipation and one night, in a Green street brothel, in a fit of jealous rage, he shot her to death.

He escaped to New Orleans, was captured, returned to Louisville and arraigned for trial. There were no extenuating circumstances, and there was not the slightest doubt that he would be condemned to die on the gallows, the method of execution then prevailing. But before the case reached the jury Judge Eaves, the venerable father of Wing's victim, arose in the court room and asked that the proceedings be ended and that Wing be given a sentence of life imprisonment instead of death. He said it was the earnest wish of himself and all his family that no more life be taken as the result of the wretched deed of his daughter and the man she married.

The old man's plea prevailed and Wing was sent to the penitentiary for life. He escaped January 6, 1908. At Cincinnati he surrendered to the police and admitted his identity and crime. He had been going under the name of John Thornton.

Died 52 Years Ago.

County Clerk Harris has received from G. A. Long, Larned, Kans., a request for information about a soldier named Thomas H. Long, who died in Hopkinsville Dec. 16, 1862. He does not say whether he was a Union or Confederate soldier.

BACK TO THE OLD DAYS

THOSE men who lived in Hopkinsville during the years 1894 to 1902 will remember the great sales of under-priced clothing this store gave to its customers. They were years of overstocked manufacturers and timid givers of credit. It was then that our Mr. Anderson by his gift of shrewd buying combined with our great outlet for large quantities of clothing, distributed through our many stores, placed his name before the manufacturers as few men in America have ever done. In those days clothing manufacturers all over the country, when in trouble, turned to us as the ones most likely to have the ready cash to take their surplus stock. Last week, two clothing manufacturers in New York, burdened with a heavy load of surplus clothing and needing ready cash, advised Mr. Anderson they were ready to convert their stock into money at a tremendous loss. At least one of them had had experiences with Mr. Anderson in former years, and remembered that no quantity could be too large but the price had to be very small. When Mr. Anderson got to New York he wrote us thus: "I am sending you a lot of men's and young men's suits, the most remarkable values I have seen for twenty years; you may think I am sending you too many, but when you see the suits, you will know you will sell them quickly. This is a most fortunate strike. In that one lot is the finest clothing made in America---the other, the best medium priced line I know, hence you will be able to please every user of good clothing at a price less than the cost to make. Signed

J. H. ANDERSON.

The clothing is here and the most we need to say about it is: That you will recognize in it Mr. Anderson's matchless judgment for values and his rare good taste for selecting pretty patterns, and back of every suit is our own guarantee of satisfaction or your money back. The Wild Onion Pest.

(Unlontown Telegram.)

Wild onions or garlic is causing the farming elements of this section and county more or less uneasiness of late. It is of a wonderful quick growth and spreads rapidly and is of no value whatever and in every way a decided nuisance. It is root, kill of destroy it in anyway. Over in Posey county, Indiana, whole fields and farms are covered with the obnoxious growth, and the progressive agriculturist had an expert botanist from the state University to come to Mt. Vernon and make an exhibit of a preparation that is said to be the only sure cure and preventive. A general test of its value to do away with the stuff was made Tuesday of this week on some of the land affected. The results obtained were gratifying and pleasing.

BOWLING GREEN FLOODED

Heaviest Rain in Many Years Falls in That City.

Bowling Green, Ky., May 6.—The heaviest rain in years fell here Monday night. The streets were flooded in a few minutes after the heavy downpour began, and the sewers were unable to carry off the water. At many places in the city, the sidewalks were impassable, the water being almost a foot deep. The rain, however, caused much damage, washing away gardens throughout the city and county, and doing great damage to newly-plowed land in the country.

The rainfall from Monday morning till this morning was 3.85 inches, about two inches having fallen during last night. The river is rising rapidly, a ten-foot stage having already been reached, and the rise continuing at six inches an hour. River men expect the largest rise since that of January, 1913, which was a record-breaker.

News From a Neighboring State.

Editor of the Kentuckian:

Knowing something of the enterprising spirits of your readers and their love of progress, I venture to report a few of the many happenings in your neighboring State of Illinois which indicate that the signs of the times are hopeful.

Illinois is a great State. Great in its geographical boundries, great in material resources, great in population, and great in forces that make for prosperity and righteousness.

During 1913 some notable history was made. The most noteworthy perhaps was the act of the legislature in giving the woman the right to vote. And be it known that our Democratic Governor, the Hon. Edward F. Dunne, signed the bill that made it a law.

The first election after the act became a law was in November last. At that time 28 towns voted on the question of saloons, and twenty two of them voted dry, and one was a tie.

Here in Pinckneyville, a county seat town of some three thousand inhabitants, we voted out ten saloons. Twice before we had voted on the same proposition and gone down in defeat. But this time, thanks to the mothers, wives and sweethearts, we "put 'em out." And sir, the temperance sentiment is so strong that we are having law enforcement. Business was not depressed but stimulated. Merchants testify that men who could not pay their store accounts before are now paying up old accounts and keeping up the new ones. There is a general revival of interest in church work. The general attendance has increased in all the churches to a noticeable degree.

On April 7th of the present year another election was held and two hundred towns voted dry, including many of the large cities, thus putting eleven hundred saloons out of commission and adding twenty-one dry counties to the list.

Commission form of government is being adopted by many towns up this way. Our people voted it in just last week. One argument that seemed to appeal to our citizens was the fact that out of more than three hundred cities and towns throughout the country that have adopted Commission form of Government not one of them has gone back to the old plan.

And now for the great Southern Baptist Convention in Nashville, Tenn., in May. The southern half of Illinois co-operates with Southern Baptists in doing Home and Foreign Mission work. This writer will attend as a delegate from the Nine Mile Association. We hope to stop by and visit with home folks and friends in Hopkinsville while on the trip.

To The Public.

I take this method of expressing my sincere thanks to the Citizens of Hopkinsville, for the loyal support given me in my recent race for School Trustee.

My success I attribute not to any influence or popularity of my own, but to the time honored principle of rotation in office, yet I can but be grateful for this expression of confidence.

May I bespeak the co-operation of all the people in my humble efforts to serve them, trusting and hoping that by applying the same efforts to this new undertaking that I have to my business, then I may, if possible, approximate the faithful and very efficient work of my esteemed predecessor.

Respectfully, your obedient servant of the people,

T. L. METCALFE.

GEN. D. E. SICKLES DEAD

Wife Long Estranged at Bedside When the End Came.

New York, May 6.—General Daniel E. Sickles died at his home Sunday night aged 89. His wife was at his bedside at the end.

Mrs. Sickles, who has been estranged from her husband for more than a quarter of a century, went to the general's house Friday, when she was informed he was dying and took charge of the arrangements for his care. She remained near his side through the night and watched by him until his death.

The final reconciliation was brought about largely through the efforts of their son, Stanton, it is understood, the general recently having made advances to his wife when assured by Stanton that they would be met half way.

Mexican Names.

Americans can't pronounce those Mexican names. They can't do it even when they know the pronunciation unless they first exercise their tongues to the necessary twisting. It is really as hard to get the right pronunciation of the Mexican names as it is to persuade the Mexicans to be good. Some American newspaper genius, who claims to be familiar with these Mexican jaw-twisters, has undertaken to tell us how to do it, and here are some of the names of both towns and individuals:

GRAND TWO DAY MUSICAL FESTIVAL SCHEDULED HERE FOR CHAUTAUQUA WEEK

MARCUS A. KELLERMAN

DENTON
GRAND OPERA
CO.BOHUMIR KRYL
AND

CATHEDRAL CHOIR

An important and interesting feature of Chautauqua week here will be a grand two day musical festival, during which days, aside from the morning four lecture, there will be nothing but music. On one day of this festival Marcus A. Kellerman, the great dramatic baritone, who has appeared in solos with the Daimrosch Orchestra, the Theodore Thomas Orchestra, Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and other widely known organizations, will give a recital. Mr. Kellerman has also appeared in grand opera, in Berlin and other foreign cities, but gave up a promising career in grand opera to engage in oratorio singing.

In the evening of this same day the Cathedral choir will appear in one of its notable musical programs. The repertoire of the Cathedral choir includes short modern oratorios by such composers as Buck, Stainer and Selnesker, also a number of old hymns, secular solos, duets, quartets and choruses of a very high order, finally closing with a grand finale of an operatic nature.

On the next day of this festival Bohumir Kryl and his world famous band will present a program in the afternoon, including cornet solos by Mr. Kryl.

In the evening of the same day Kryl and his band will be heard in another concert during the first part of the program, and the latter part will be given up to selections from grand opera by the Denton Grand Opera Company, accompanied by the band. These grand opera players will appear in special costume. In fact, it will be a grand finale, to these two days such as has never before been seen at a Chautauqua.

LOVES DREAM INTERRUPTED

Tom Hogan Loses His Girl Wife On Way To His Home.

When Tom Hogan, aged 57, married little Callie Cobb, Friday, more bad luck began. He had just been divorced from wife No. 3 and although the old man was armed with papers to get a license to marry Callie, who is only 16, his honeymoon started with rough sailing.

The couple left immediately for the groom's home in the eastern part of the county, but just before reaching it they were met by the girl's father, who, Hogan claims, was armed with a big pistol and who commanded the girl to get out of the buggy with her newly-made husband and go home. Cobb then told Hogan to go "the other way."

Both orders were obeyed and Hogan returned to town and intimated that he will take legal proceedings to reclaim his girl wife. The marriage license was issued on what purported to be a permit from the girl's father. Hogan insists this was genuine and voluntarily given, and that he can't account for the sudden and violent change in his father-in-law's mood.

Hogan is a well known citizen and was a candidate for the Republican nomination for July, last summer, but withdrew before the primary was held. He was granted a divorce from his third wife a few weeks ago. Under Kentucky laws the court costs must be settled before such decrees are really effective, and this formality had to be met before the license could be issued.

Another Assassination.

The body of Porfirio Laurel, an American ranchman, who disappeared last November, was recovered Sunday from a grave near Nuevo Laredo, Mexico. Laurel had been arrested by Mexican federalists who persistently denied reports of his execution and until the body was exhumed the mystery of the Texan's absence was unexplained. Recovery of the ranchman's body was made possible by the evacuation of Nuevo Laredo by the federalists. Rebel officers commanding the constitutional forces which now occupies the town interposed no objections. It was fully identified.

SAVING ON MEAT BILL.

IDEA OF RETAIL BUTCHER AS TO HOW TO DO IT.

High-priced Cuts, He Asserts, Are Not Necessarily the Best—More Nourishing in Many of the One-and-a-half Grade—About Cheaps.

In the Woman's Home Companion a retail butcher writes an article on "Reducing the Meat Bill." In which he shows how people who buy the high-priced cuts don't get the best value for their money. He takes an average weekly meat bill of $1.62 and shows item by item, how that bill can be reduced to $1.21, just by using cheaper cuts, which he says are better cuts. After listing with the various kinds of steaks—in which, by the way, he tells about the steak that the butcher can't sell—he goes on as follows about roasts and chops:

A roast of beef costing $1.40 or $1.50 at the present time is not much; a hungry and healthy family will probably finish it in one meal. You can still enjoy good roast beef, and surely for less money, only buy the right cut.
From past observation the writer has found that the best cut of the rib roast ask for the first cut of the rib roast.
Of course, they are the most expensive cuts. The fifth, sixth, and shoulder ribs are hardly in demand, and the butcher has a hard job selling them.
These end ribs or shoulder ribs of roast beef are not only considerably cheaper to buy, but are richer in nourishment and food value. When buying one of the three or four ribs of beef, say, for instance, weighing five pounds, you will find that you hardly have sufficient meat left after it is carefully trimmed, and the bone taken out. The difference in price between the first cut on the rib and the last two cuts is at least six cents a pound, and when you ask for a shoulder rib roast ask the butcher to insert a piece of suet in the center of the roast, or, if he has time, to lard it with thin pieces of fat.
Another good piece of meat for roast beef is the top sirloin, which is not so cheap, but it is recommended because it has no waste.

"The next important item on the meat bill is chops—either lamb, pork or veal chops. Lamb chops, however, are the kind mostly demanded; and, of course, the demand is for loin and rib chops, the most expensive. There is the same solution as with steaks—buy shoulder chops; they cost less and are sweeter. This same principle applied again to pork chops. The shoulder chops are very sweet and tender, and the butcher will sell them for less, but very few people know about them."

Work Basket.
This stand may be made of three bamboo canes or three broomsticks.
These should be 30 inches long. Fasten them firmly in the center with wire. Fasten a shallow basket with wire near the end of the canes. It will be more secure if holes are bored in the canes to pass the wire through.
White enamel the whole. If a cover is desired for the basket, sew a strip of pretty cretonne or China silk to the inside of the basket and run a drawing of narrow ribbon or cord on top. Use bows of ribbon to cover wire where the canes cross and where basket is attached to stand. Ribbon used should match cretonne or silk that is used for basket trimming.

Prune or French Plum Mold.
Soak three-quarters of an ounce of gelatin in half a pint of cold water.
Stone one pound of French plums, put them in a stewpan with one-quarter pound of castor sugar, three-quarters of a pint of water, and a strip of lemon peel. Stew till tender, remove the lemon peel, add the gelatin, stir till dissolved, add a wineglassful of wine, port or claret, and pour into a mold with a white in the center. When set turn it out and fill the center of the mold with half a pint of whipped cream.

Southern Tea Cake.
Beat together four eggs and two cups of sugar, then add one cup of butter, one even teaspoon of soda and a teaspoon of vanilla. Add four cups of flour or as much as it needed.
Place on molding board, roll thin and cut with biscuit cutter. Sprinkle sugar on top of the cakes, cinnamon also if you care for it, just before putting in the oven.

To Remove Spots From Carpets.
To remove greasy spots from carpets the following is excellent: Lay a piece of blotting paper over the spot and set a flatiron on top of the paper, just hot enough not to scorch. Change the paper as often as it becomes soaked.

To Remove Finger Prints From Piano.
To remove finger marks on a highly polished piano, wipe with a cloth wet in pure cold water. It does not injure in the slightest if wiped dry, and restores the new look at once.

Keeping Flatirons Smooth.
Flatirons can be kept clean and smooth by rubbing them first with a piece of wax tied in a cloth and after ward rubbing them on a paper or cloth strewn with coarse salt.

Restoring Old Paintings.
When old picture frames become discolored rub them with a sponge dipped in turpentine. This is very effective, and restores the brightness.

FRENCH DRY CLEANING

TO BEGIN THE MEAL

DAINTY APPETIZER IS ALWAYS
IN ORDER.

Almost Any Number of Delicate, Tempting Tidbits Are at Command of Housewife—Should Be Mere Morsels.

A good many of us think that unless we can keep a butler an hors d'oeuvre regularly served is out of the question. To be sure, we serve oysters on the half shell and clams and grapefruit. But we seldom venture beyond these things, unless we entertain formally.

The middle-class French housewife understands the true value and economy of an hors d'oeuvre. Poor French housewife! How often she is used to illustrate the housewife's virtues! She must tire of her popularity.
But the fact remains that she does make use of the hors d'oeuvre in the proper fashion.

What she understands is this: That a dainty tidbit to begin the meal puts the diners in a pleasant frame of mind. It whets their appetites and at the same time soothes them and puts them in a mood to enjoy, and, moreover, to assimilate the dishes that follow.

The hors d'oeuvre need not be expensive. Caviar is not essential to any one's happiness. But it must be delicate, tempting.

A skinned and boned sardine, laid neatly on a narrow strip of thin, hot buttered toast and garnished with a sprig of crisp parsley is an easily prepared and inexpensive tidbit. A few chilled, red radishes, with a thin, round sandwich of white bread and butter, makes a good luncheon appetizer. A little fish paste, which is sold in tubes, spread on a toasted wafer, is another appetizing morsel.

These suggestions show that the planning of an appetizer need not be very troublesome. If radishes are in market, if they look unusually good, make use of them. If they aren't in market, go to the supply closet and get down a can of sardines.

The hors d'oeuvre, be it remembered, is only a morsel to tempt the appetite—a soothing taste to put us in a mood for soup and the other good things to come. In this guise it is a valuable addition to our hurried American meals.

It is never more than a morsel, a licker to the palate, a sample. It is never a substantial dish that in any way appeases the fury of the appetite.
In making it too substantial, some cooks err.

It should always be no more than a tempting taste.

Bread Without Kneading.

Here is the recipe for cooking four loaves of bread without kneading: To a quart and a half of lukewarm water and two quarts of flour add two cakes of yeast and three tablespoons of sugar. Stir in a pinch of salt and then add two more quarts of sifted flour. Stir the dough until stiff and shape into loaves with the tips of the fingers. Handle the dough as little as possible, for this lessens the danger of concentrating the raw starch in the center. The loaves should stand until about 75° raised, and then should be baked in the usual way.

Potato Hash.

Whip boiled potatoes very light. To a pint of mashed potatoes add a scant tablespoonful of butter, a tablespoonful of hot milk or cream, a half teaspoonful of salt, and pepper to taste.
Beat in a raw egg, shape into small conical heaps; put in a greased pan to a hot oven and as they brown glaze them with butter. Have the oven very hot; also have a hot platter. Slip a cake turner under each one and transfer to the hot dish.

To Clean White Silk.

An easy way to clean white silk without using gasoline is to lay it on a sheet of soft, white tissue paper, cover it thickly with flour, lay another sheet of tissue paper on top and roll it all up as tightly as possible. Leave it for a few days, and then take it out and shake it well. Be sure to use white tissue paper and not colored for wrapping the silk.

Mock Cauliflower.

Chop together one-half small head of cabbage and one stalk of celery.
Cook 30 minutes in boiling water, in just enough water to cover.
When done add one cup of milk, season with salt and pepper, add a small piece of butter, and thicken a little.

Graham Pudding.

In mixing bowl, one cup milk, one cup molasses, one level teaspoon soda dissolved in molasses; sift two cups graham flour, little salt, add to the above mixture and one cup raisins, steam four hours, serve with whipped cream. Delicious and inexpensive.

Storing Fruit and Cereals.

Cereals and evaporated fruit should be kept in old preserves jars and never in paper bags, as the latter invite bugs and mice.

To Keep Cheese from Molding.

Cheese will not mold so readily if the cut parts are rubbed with butter and covered with greased paper.

Making Floors Easy to Clean.

Kitchen floors are much more easily cleaned when painted with boiled linseed oil.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH NO. 5.

Pioneer Poultryman Who Sells His Eggs At Twelve Dollars a Dozen.

Time was when the poultry business was looked upon as a sideline for the women folks. That time has long since past. When chickens sell for prices ranging from $10 to $1,000 a piece and eggs bring from $1 to $5 each, poultry breeding becomes a full-size man's job.

The first man in Hopkinsville to look ahead in poultry was Eld. T. D. Moore, known all over the United States. He was born at Earlington, Ky., Jan. 27, 1854, and was brought up for the Christian ministry and orained in 1875 at Bethlehem church in Hopkins county. He began preaching at Bordley, Ky., remaining there for seven years. From 1883 to 1887 he was in charge of a church at Horse Cave, Ky., in the latter year coming to Todd county and locating at Trenton. After three years there, he came to Hopkinsville in 1891 and began work as an evangelist of the Christian church and for 21 years held meetings all over Western Kentucky and occasionally in other states. His regular field embraced 33 counties, but from time to time he visited churches in Tennessee, Alabama, Illinois, Indiana and Missouri, in his ministry covering a period of 33 years.

In 1892, in order to teach his young sons business habits, he decided to go into the breeding of poultry for profit. After a careful study of breeds, he selected the Cornish Indians, mainly because they were radically different and distinctive in the fowl kingdom. Selecting his breeder, a leading importer, he paid $10 for 13 eggs, and hatched 8 chicks, raising 3 cockerels and 5 pullets. He sold one cockerel for $15 and another for $10, coming out of his investment with a fine pen of five birds and $15 ahead in money. This was the foundation of his flock. The next year he paid $65 for five imported fowls and turned the business over to his oldest son, Carl C. Moore, then a mere boy. Carl ran it for 10 years and was succeeded by Ward, the second son, who in turn gave way to T. D. Jr. Carl is now a prosperous real estate dealer of Memphis, Ward is cashier in a bank at Hopewell, Miss., and T. D. Jr., is taking a medical course in Vanderbilt University.

For the last year or two Mr. Moore has had to give his own attention to the rapidly growing business and as his health has not been good he gave up preaching the first of the present year and is now giving all his time to his poultry business, which is flourishing as never before. It brings him in a steady and ample income and this year is the best year he has ever had. Last year he raised 450 fowls and this year will raise 400 with good luck. He has six breeding pens and from two of them has sold all of the eggs on orders booked in advance at $1 per egg. None of his eggs were sold for less than $5 a sitting during the early months, but all are now being sold at half price since May 1.

During the last 22 years, "Moore's Cornish Indians" have been shipped all over the United States and have won in some of the greatest shows. Fowls have been sent to Honolulu, Mexico and Cuba and eggs are sent every year all over the country. "Moore's Indians" are a distinct strain recognized as the very cream of perfection in this breed. Mr. Moore never markets culls at any price and no eggs are sold that are not full size, well-shaped and suitable for hatching purposes. Nothing goes out without the reputation of an honest dealer behind it. His yards have been visited by many of the leading poultrymen from Ohio, Iowa, Indiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri and Tennessee, who came to inspect his stock and study his methods. His yards are located on South Virginia street.

RESOLUTIONS

Of Respect of The Church Hill Grange on the Death of Mrs. Ann Bacon Clardy.

On Monday afternoon, April 12th, 1914, our sister passed away at her home near Newstead, Ky. In her death our Grange loses one of its charter members.

Whereas, Our Father, who makes no mistakes, has called her from suffering to rest,

Be it Resolved, therefore, First, That we seek to bow submissively to his Divine Will; Second, That we hereby express our appreciation of her loyalty to our Grange as long as health and surroundings would permit; Third, That we extend to the devoted husband and stricken family in their bereavement our deepest sympathy and lovingly commend them to the grace of our covenant-keeping God.

To the aged companion, we would say:

"Thou, who'er thy wife's lone bier Sheddest the bitter drops like rain,
Hope that a brighter, happier sphere
Will give her to thy arms again.

For God has marked each sorrowing day,
And numbered every secret tear,
And Heaven's long age of bliss shall pay

For all his children suffer here."

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes, copies sent to the county papers and a copy to the family.

MRS. R. H. BOYD,
MRS. S. F. HOLLOWAY.

A Carnegie Hero.

Sanford R. Parker, the young man awarded a Carnegie medal is a son of Mr. S. R. Parker, proprietor of the Willard Hotel, of this city. The medal is awarded the young man for his heroic work in saving several children from drowning on a pond several winters ago, near Carthage, Ill. Young Parker, who is only about 15 years of age now, together with his sister, were skating. They were preparing to leave when the ice cracked and a number of the young skaters fell through, two or three drowning. The boy and his sister rescued several who had gone through the ice, the deed attracting the attention of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, resulting in the award mentioned above.—Madisonville Hustler.
